DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent, or on an international application by another who has fulfilled the requirements of paragraphs (1), (2), and (4) of section 371(c) of this title before the invention thereof by the applicant for patent.

1. Claim 9, is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Kaminsky et al. (U. S. Patent Number 6,219,538).

Regarding claim 9, Kaminsky et al. discloses everything claimed, as applied above (see claims 1) in addition, Kaminsky et al. discloses record of registration data contains pairs and comparison for each data item as disclosed in column 2 lines 25-37.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1, 6, and 19-21 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kaminsky et al. in view of Monrad et al. (U. S. Patent Number 6,208,628).

Regarding claims 1, 6, and 19-21, Kaminsky et al. discloses all the claimed invention as set fourth in the instant application, in addition Kaminsky et al. discloses a method and apparatus for fraud control in cellular telephone systems further Kaminsky et al. discloses a method for performing a detach of a terminal registered to a network comprising sending a detach request, receiving detach request, comparing received request, detaching terminal as disclosed in column 5 lines 9-40. However, Kaminsky et al. fails to disclose detach from terminal to the network.

In the same field of endeavor, Monrad et al. further discloses a method for providing a unique temporary identification of a mobile station. In addition Monrad et al. discloses a detach from terminal to the network in column 1 lines 65-67 and in column 2 lines 1-7

Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to improve Kaminsky et al. by modifying a method and apparatus for fraud control in cellular telephone systems with the use of discloses a method for providing a unicue temporary identification of a mobile station as taught by Monrad for the purpose of authenticating the number.

Regarding claims 2-5, Kaminsky et al. discloses everything claimed, as applied above (see claims 1) in addition, Kaminsky et al. discloses sending detach request message as disclosed in column 6 lines 58-67.

3. Claims 7-8, 10-18 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Kaminsky et al. in view of Monrad and further in view of Kuriki (U. S. Patent Number 5,765,105).

Regarding claims 7,8,15,16,17,18, Kaminsky et al. in view of Monrad discloses everything claimed, as applied above (see claims 1) however, Kaminsky et al. in view of Monrad fails to specifically disclose temporary subscriber and international subscriber identity.

In the same field of endeavor, Kuriki further discloses a communication system capable of using a plurality of subscriber identity media sharing a single subscriber identity information. In addition Kuriki. discloses a international subscriber identity in column 1 lines 25-30.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to improve Kaminsky et al. by modifying a method and apparatus for fraud control in cellular telephone systems with the use of a temporary subscriber and international subscriber identity as taught by Kuriki for the purpose of authenticating the number.

Regarding claim 10, Kaminsky et al. in view of Monrad discloses everything claimed, as applied above (see claims 1) however, Kaminsky et al. in view of Monrad fails to specifically discloses sending a registration request from terminal to network.

In the same field of endeavor, Kuriki further discloses a communication system capable of using a plurality of subscriber identity media sharing a single subscriber identity information. In addition Kuriki. discloses a registration request from a terminal to network as disclosed in column 4 lines 25-34.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to improve Kaminsky et al. by modifying a method and apparatus for fraud control in cellular telephone systems with the use of a registration request from a terminal to network as taught by Kuriki for the purpose of authenticating the number.

Regarding claims 11-14, Kaminsky et al. in view of Monrad discloses everything claimed, as applied above (see claims 1) however, Kaminsky et al. in view of Monrad fails to specifically discloses a registration request from terminal to network.

In the same field of endeavor, Kuriki further discloses a communication system capable of using a plurality of subscriber identity media sharing a single subscriber identity information. In addition Kuriki. discloses a registration request from a terminal to network as disclosed in column 11 lines 48-64.

Therefore, it would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to improve Kaminsky et al. by modifying a method and apparatus for fraud control in cellular telephone systems with the use of a registration request from a terminal to network as taught by Kuriki for the purpose of authenticating the number.
